

200 Gold and Bronze Elephants In Art Sold at Lawson Auction

1,000 Pieces Under Hammer To-Day Include Bric-a-brac, Pictures, Rugs, Silver Plate and Curios.

EGYPT, Mass., Oct. 12.—Thomas W. Lawson was a trader again to-day, this time not in copper stock but in bronze elephants. The famous financier who has weathered many a Wall Street crisis, was disposing through his trustees of the furnishings of Dreamworld, his luxurious South Shore estate, for the purpose of bringing his affairs in order after a period of unfavorable operations. The estate itself will be sold privately.

The auctioneer's hammer fell on more than a thousand of the articles that comprise Dreamworld treasures, the insured valuation of which is $90,000. The sale, the first of a series, will continue to-morrow and Saturday.

The collections of art objects have been brought together from all parts of the world. They comprise bronzes, bric-a-brac, pictures, rugs, silver plate and many curios.

Unique among them are the collections of elephants and small bells. The pachyderms, in ivory, bronze, china and precious metals, are the works of the world's cleverest craftsmen. The smallest, made of pure gold with ivory tusks, is the size of a peachstone; the largest, of bronze, is more than a foot in height. There are nearly 200 elephants in the collection. The bells were gathered abroad, one from every country that Mr. Lawson had visited. A battered hand organ stands in a corner of the dining room. It was purchased by the financier for $100 from an itinerant Italian whose music pleased him.

Five more shades in Crepe d' Annam

$3.85 yard

This silk has been such a success that people are asking for it in additional colors.

While it is scarce we have been able to find it in five new shades—elephant gray, toast brown, seal brown, sapphire blue and a vivid green.

And more of it in the shades we have had before—Chinese red, navy blue, gray, black, cocoa.

40 in. wide, the silk lends itself to draping with an almost exotic charm because of its clinging softness and a sheen almost moiré in effect.

The Draperies Shop has achieved a "scoop." To offer at less than half price 2,225 yards of natural color pure Irish linen, hand-blocked in color, in 89 designs, from a manufacturer well-known in the linen world, is an achievement, indeed, even though they are discontinued patterns and slightly defective.

The defects add charm

They are defects only in the printing. They are slight, a blur here and there which shows slightly on the light grounds, but is scarcely noticeable on darker ones. On lengths of many yards there may be only two or three or four such blurs.

Small patterns for slip-covers

The single tulip in blue and mauve or yellow, and rose; the fuchsia with a little lattice of black or yellow; the close-little-knot-of-roses in many shades.

Impressive big designs

English oak; can't you see big spreading roses and long stripes to harmonize with English oak furniture?

The Love Bird, perfect for a bedroom with modernist proclivities.

Art Nouveau, in which all the colors of the rainbow mingle to produce a harmonious and most engaging whole.

Rose Basket, from which great trailing roses spill in a profusion of glorious pink.

NAMESAKES SHOT, ONE A BROTHER OF "PAPER BOX KID"

Two Cousins Wounded Near Spot Where Gang Leader Killed Three.

Sam Shillitani, twenty-three, No. 241 Mulberry Street, and Sam Shillitani, twenty-six, No. 2408 Hoffman Street, Bronx, were shot in the right foot and back respectively, early today in Mulberry, near Kenmare Street, a few feet from where the "Paper Box Kid," a brother of one, killed a civilian and two policemen in 1913.

The men mysteriously wounded today are cousins, and say they do not know who shot them or any reason for it. The police believed a mysterious automobile they chased into Kenmare Street figured in the shooting, and though they learned through its number that it belonged to the wounded Shillitani of Mulberry Street, they decided they were mistaken. After being attended the wounded cousins went home.

A few feet from where they were shot, according to the police, "The Paper Box Kid," a brother of Fred and Sam Shillitani, on May 3, 1913, shot and killed a man named Rizzo and then Policemen Charles J. Teare and Probationary Policeman William B. Heaney, who tried to arrest him. While awaiting execution in Sing Sing he killed a keeper, but finally was executed.
